

Sterling – 72" Diameter Latex On Table Cloth 2008

This painting is of my dog Sterling that I had when I was 11. One day Sterling disappeared, I looked for her for hours. My neighbor told me that he had seen a person lure Sterling into a car with pieces of baloney and then drive away.

Sweet National Tragedy - 18"x18" Latex On Wood 2009

The freedom of Dessert City has been attacked. Bananas (and Fruit) HATE the freedoms of ice cream cones and other unnatural snacks. Extra-sweet and unhealthy foods will turn this tragedy into victory by attacking Fruit's unrelated neighbor called Vegetables. I am just making all of this up, it's not really true.

Switzer Visits The Alamo - 18"x24" Latex On Wood 2009

You can just mull this one over for yourself. The Sooner the better!

The Girl Who Went To Bed With A Dolphin - 16"x24" Latex On Wood 2009

This painting is about the girl that went to bed with a dolphin. Now, I know when people say "went to bed" you might get all sorts of ideas and get all bent out of shape. Well, these two just had a nap. Now she's snipping coupons and soon they'll go to a supermarket TOGETHER. Because that's what 2009 is all about: GETTING ALONG.

The Trouble With Land Lines (These Days) - 18"x18" Latex On Wood 2009

Some giant pandas have destroyed some phone lines because it's really unfair to charge people a lot of money for long distance calls. There are probably other things involved that I don't understand, like charges from different sub-companies, but really we should probably just go back to cans and yarn. Now you're talking!

This Painting Is Wrong (Zebra) - 18"x24" Latex On Wood 2009

Zebras are actually black with white stripes, they're also reported to be kind of mean. Dalmatians are reported to be mean too. Just because those animals don't get to be in color, they are so mad about it.
