

This Swine Flew - 18"x24" Latex On Wood 2009

This painting used to be about pigs flying and I would give it to people that just had a child so the kid would always have it and then when they were older they would remember having it. I'm totally selfish. I'm pretty bummed about the decline of Swine Flu because I thought that the title change was going to write me the ticket to Hollywood. It doesn't look that way, Hall & Oates. Or Hall or Oates, whichever is paying attention.

Those Awful Hats – 12"x12" Latex & Ink On Wood 2009

D.W. Griffith made a movie in 1909 called THOSE AWFUL HATS. 6 years later he made a movie called BIRTH OF A NATION. Did you see BIRTH OF A NATION? WHOA THAT MOVIE WAS SO WEIRD. Like uh-oh weird.

TRS-80 Color Computer 1 - 18"x18" Latex On Wood 2009

This is just a painting of an old computer that was sold at Radio Shack. It was really hard to type on this computer. Like it's hard to type on this computer because I'm really tired of writing things about these paintings.

Uneazy-E - 18"x18" Latex On Wood 2009

Eazy-E had a look in the mirror and was rather surprised. "What have I become?" he asked himself. "Am I helping or harming society?" A short time later he got really stoned and listened to Space Ritual by Hawkwind and stopped worrying about everything altogether. Essentially, he figured it out.

We Miss You, Michael Worful - 15"x13" Latex On Wood 2009

I did not invent the design of this painting, Michael Worful did. I do not intend on telling him that I made this painting.

Young Michael Jackson With A Squirrel In His Hair - 18"x24" Latex On Wood

Michael Jackson was filming a movie in 1971 called "Fun Time Infinity". During a scene filmed in the woods a squirrel crawled into Michael Jackson's hair. "THERE'S A SQUIRREL IN YOUR HAIR!" somebody exclaimed. Michael Jackson did not notice because he had stopped being a human being 6 months earlier.