

1541 & VIC-20 Disk Drives – 16"x24" Latex On Wood 2009

When I recently posted pictures of these paintings on the internet, I received comments such as, "0-1 day warez" and "Load 'awesome' ,8,1" There's both a good and not good chance that you'll know what these people were talking about. If you do, you'll likely say to yourself, "Man, I really would like to have a painting of some old Commodore 64 disk drives on my wall at home," and you'll buy this painting. That's because I'm pandering to you. It's my specialty.

Alexander Graham Bell – 30"x30" Latex On Window 2009

A.G. Bell is known to be the inventor of the telephone, though it is disputed as to who had the idea first and which parts of the invention were actually his. What isn't disputed is that Alexander Graham Bell was a gallant womanizer who married 5 times and fathered 19 children by 7 different women. His most successful child was his son Glen who was born in 1910. Glen Bell was 36 when he left the Marine Corps in 1946. He was an avid Mexican food take-out customer, and was aware of the hang-ups in ordering tacos to go from a full-service restaurant. He basically wanted to change the method of preparation. He began by selling various hot dogs, including a chili dog in a Mexican neighborhood. At the same time, he researched tacos. Glen Bell eventually opened a restaurant called Bell's Drive-In. Eventually that restaurant changed it's name it Taco Bell. I'm pretty sure you have eaten at Taco Bell and I'm fairly certain that you think it's pretty good.

An Owl – 18"x18" Latex On Wood 2009

Owls are nocturnal birds of prey that like to live in barns. An interesting well-known fact about owls is that they can turn their heads around 360 degrees. It has been recently determined that the Australasian hawk-owl, also known as a Ninoux, can turn it's head around 1080 degrees. That's a lot!

Babies: Wrap 'Em Up – 12"x12" Latex On Wood 2009

Babies, everybody is havin' 'em! Kids are having kids and soon babies will be having babies. At one time there were just 6 people on earth, that's what the earth started with (Corinthians 7:4). Now the population of the earth is 987,567,345,342. If you have a baby you should wrap it in an old napkin and set it on the windowsill TO COOL OFF.
